Commission extends Temporary Order against Wesley William Robinson and DRR900306 NS Ltd.

Halifax - The Nova Scotia Securities Commission has extended a temporary Order against Wesley William Robinson and DRR900306 NS Ltd. Both Robinson and DRR900306 NS Ltd. appear to be conducting trades of securities in Nova Scotia without being registered to do so.

The original temporary Order was issued against Robinson and DRR900306 NS Ltd. on December 16, 2019. It was due to expire on January 15, 2020. An application to extend the temporary Order was made to the Commission on December 23, 2019, and an extension was granted by the Commission on January 15, 2020. The temporary Order remains in effect until the earlier of June 15, 2020 or a hearing on the merits is held.

“It is common for a temporary Order to be extended while an investigation into conduct that potentially violates securities laws is ongoing”, said Jennie Pick, enforcement counsel for the Commission. “Persons that solicit investments from the public in Nova Scotia are required to comply with Nova Scotia securities laws and most are required to be registered with the Commission. Before investing, members of the public should always check the Canadian Securities Administrators' National Registration Database to confirm that the person offering securities is registered.”

Copies of the original temporary Order and extending Order are available on the Commission's website.

The Nova Scotia Securities Commission is the provincial government agency responsible for regulating trading in securities in the province.
